HBS Summer Fellows Program: Organization Data Sheet

Harvard Business School (HBS) offers financial assistance to MBA students who earn summer salaries that are lower than the traditional MBA level. HBS regards financial support from the host organization as a sign of commitment to the MBA student. The host organization is generally expected to pay a student intern at least USD 650 per week. For organizations unable to commit USD 650 per week, we ask the organization to complete this document and share it with the student hire, who will then submit it as part of his/her application.
