Dr. Regina Herzlinger was a health care adviser to John McCain's presidential campaign and is one of the nation's leading experts on consumer-driven health care. The first woman to be tenured and chaired at Harvard Business School, Dr. Herzlinger has sat on the boards of directors of dozens of non-profit and business health care organizations. Her transformational books on consumer-driven health care have been reviewed in The New England Journal of Medicine, Health Affairs, and JAMA.

This event is hosted by Harvard Medical School's chapter of the Benjamin Rush Society. Our chapter aims to explore conservative solutions to America's health policy challenges.
